Draw Conclusions

- A conclusion is a decision you make after thinking about the details in what you read.
- Often your prior knowledge can help you draw, or make, a conclusion.
- When you draw a conclusion, be sure it makes sense and is supported by what you have read.

Directions Read the following passage. Then complete the diagram.

Several factors led to the formation of cities. First, small agricultural groups grew larger when farmers and hunters were able to provide a steady supply of food for more people. Also, settlers started keeping herds of animals for food and other purposes. Because of these developments there was enough food for everyone, so settlers had time to learn new skills. They started making better tools and finding new uses for them. Better tools led to improvements in living conditions. Workers built structures to protect the community and to store food. They traded with other groups for items they needed. As more people lived together, members of the community started having different responsibilities and social relationships changed. Eventually, these communities developed a system to govern themselves. They also created a written language.

The Boy in the Mirror

The last face Jason saw at night and the first he saw in the morning was his own. He saw himself in the mirror at night when he brushed his teeth before bed. He saw himself again in the mornings as he washed his face and brushed his hair before breakfast.

Jason liked to pretend that the boy that he saw in the mirror was not a reflection of himself, but a twin who lived in a parallel universe. He didn’t have a lot of friends, and this was a way he could always have someone to talk to. Jason would wish his twin good night and good morning.

One day, Jason didn’t want to go to school to take his math test. “I don’t feel well,” he told his mother.

“Then you should stay home and rest,” Jason’s mother said. Later, Jason got out of bed and went to the bathroom. He splashed water on his face as usual and started to brush his hair.

That was when he saw it. Or more correctly, that was when he didn’t see it. He saw no reflection of himself in the mirror. Something was terribly wrong.

Jason drew close to the glass, peering into the bottom, the sides, and even the corners. His reflection wasn’t there. “Where are you?” he asked.

Jason looked at his hands and body and feet. He felt his arms, his chest, his face, and his hair. He certainly could feel himself. He stared at the mirror. But he could not see himself there. “Oh, no,” he cried. “What have I done?”

He ran back to his bed and pulled the covers over his head.

Could this be his doing? Had his pretending to be sick ripped a tear in the fabric of the universe? He shivered and shook, worried and fretted until he fell into a fitful sleep.

When he awakened, the sun was setting outside. The evening air smelled sweet. Jason slipped from bed and tiptoed into the bathroom, his eyes looking away from the mirror. He forced himself to turn and look. There he was. His reflection was back. “Thank you, thank you for coming back,” he said to his reflection.

“You’re welcome,” replied his twin.

Vocabulary • Endings

- Endings are a letter or letters added to the end of a base word.
- Recognizing an ending will help you figure out the word’s meaning.
- The endings -s and -es can be added to singular nouns to make them plural. The endings -s, -ed, and -ing can be added to verbs to change the tense. The endings -er and -est can be added to adjectives to use them to compare.
- The definition of endings can be found in dictionaries, books that list words and their meanings.

Directions  Read the following passage. Then answer the questions below.

Lisa enjoyed camping with her brother and parents every autumn. In a way she felt they were fleeing civilization and their complex city life. She had noticed that life in the city often makes people anxious. She always felt happier while hiking through the woods and sleeping under the stars. There was no one to envy because the beauty of nature surrounded them. Even the blunders they made turned into games to play. Once they hiked down the wrong trail and got lost. Instead of worrying, they worked together to find the quickest way back. When she returned to the city, Lisa felt inspired by the beauty she had enjoyed.

1. In the word fleeing, how does the -ing change the meaning of the base word?

2. What is the difference between the -s in blunders and the -s in makes?

3. How does the -er change the meaning of the endings in happier?

4. What does the -ed in hiked do to the meaning of the base word?

5. Change some of the endings in this sentence to put the verbs in the past tense: “Lisa calls out to her family and then walks down the trail to meet them.”

Home Activity  Your child identified and used endings added to base words, such as -s, -ed, -ing, and -est. Read a newspaper or magazine article with your child. Change the endings of some of the words and discuss with him or her how the sentences’ meanings change.
Instruction Manual

- Following directions involves doing or making something.
- Directions are usually numbered.
- Read all the directions before starting to act on the first direction given.
- Read the first direction, do what it says to do, and then proceed to the next step.
- Try to visualize the purpose or result of the process.

Directions  Read these directions. Then answer the questions.

How to Make Crystals

1. Gather the materials you will need. They are: a small amount of Epsom salts, water, a sponge, and a shallow dish.
2. Boil water. Remove from heat. Add about 1/4 cup of Epsom salts to about 1/2 cup of boiling water. Stir until the salts dissolve.
3. Put a sponge in a shallow dish. Pour the liquid over the sponge. (The crystals will be easier to see on a sponge.) Only pour in enough of the mixture to cover the bottom of the dish.
4. Put the glass dish in a secure spot in the sun. Soon the water will evaporate and crystals will grow.

1. You and a friend have decided to make crystals. What would you do first? Explain.

2. What would you do next?

3. How are the directions organized to make them easier to follow?

4. Which word told you when to look for crystals?

5. What do you think would have happened if you hadn’t heated the water before you added the Epsom salts?
Directions  Read this recipe. Then answer the questions below.

How to Make Pizza Dough

1. Assemble ingredients: 3 cups flour, 1 package active dry yeast, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, and water.
2. In a small mixer bowl combine 1 cup of flour and yeast.
3. In a saucepan, heat water, butter, and salt until warm, stirring constantly to melt butter. (Always work with an adult when using the stove.)
4. Add liquid ingredients to dry mixture in mixer bowl. Beat at low speed with electric mixer for 1 minute.
5. Beat 3 minutes at high speed. Then turn the dough out on a flat surface and add enough of the remaining flour to make a soft dough.
6. Cover and let rise about 45 to 60 minutes until it doubles its size.
7. Spread dough evenly on a greased pizza pan. Add toppings and cook in oven for 30 minutes to an hour.

6. How much time do you think you will need to prepare the dough? Explain.

7. How much time do you think you will need from step #2 until your pizza is ready to eat? Explain.

8. Describe what you will have created at the end of step #3.

9. Go through the sequence of steps in making pizza. Do you think any of the steps could be rearranged? Why or why not?

10. How can you find out what equipment you will need before you start?

Home Activity  Your child learned about following directions and the concept of steps in a process. Go over an instruction manual together. Ask your child questions about the sequence of tasks and how long the project will take.
